My husband & I are planning a trip to Guatemala this April 2012, but our adult daughter who travels widely expressed concern for our safety given violence in Peten area & Guatemala in general: kidnappings, etc. We plan to visit Tikal, Antigua & Chichicastenango. We speak only a few phrases of Spanish, another big disadvantage. We are tall Anglos in our 60's, going on our own (no tour group).

One of the main reasons we took on our boatsitting and dogsitting gig in Rio Dulce, Guatemala was because it was one of the only regions left on our Guatemala bucket list that we didn't get the opportunity to visit when we were last there in 2011.. What I didn't realize was that this region is so incredibly different than the rest of the country.

The Cost of Driving Around the World. It seems like whenever it comes up in conversation that we've just driven our van around the world, and that to do so took nearly three years, the first thing people say is something along the lines of "That sounds expensive!" I can see why people might think that. I mean, we used to take ten day vacations to Europe, and when we would return our bank ...
